

“Making Peace”

Steven DeLay
Wake Forest University

Abstract. The world, perhaps essentially, is a place of violence. What sense can be made of that statement? In response, I provide a philosophical analysis of the phenomenon of violence by contrasting it with three related forms of peace: the peace with self, the peace with others, and the peace with God. I then conclude with some remarks concerning what it might mean to resist the violence of the world.